Security Threat/Suspicious Person

- General Approach
 - Our Safety Team does not seek conflict; we seek to address concerns calmly, professionally, and proactively. When a potential threat or suspicious individual is identified, the first priority is immediate radio acknowledgment and communication.
 - All radio communication should remain concise and clear.
- Initial Radio Communication
 - When identifying a concern, communicate the following over the radio:
 - Team identifier
 - Location zone
 - Brief description of concern
 - Example: "This is Shepherd. Suspicious individual in Zone 1 near the front drive."
 - The Shift Lead should immediately acknowledge and begin moving toward the location upon first radio contact.
- Initial Engagement
 - Safety Team members should approach calmly and professionally using welcoming, non-confrontational language such as:
 - "It's good to see you."
 - "How can I help you?"
 - "How's it going today?"
 - "Who are you here to see?"
 - "Can I help you get to the right place?"

- The goal of the Safety Team member is to engage the individual in conversation while calmly guiding them away from children, crowds, or high-traffic areas in order to isolate and assess the situation more safely.
- If additional support is needed, separate yourself appropriately and request assistance over the radio.
- Example: "This is Shepherd. I need support in Zone 1 at the front drive."
- The Shift Lead will remain involved until the situation is resolved, an "all clear" is given, or escalation occurs.
- Radio Expectations
 - All Safety Team members on shift should:
 - Keep radio communication clear and purposeful
 - Avoid unnecessary chatter
 - Maintain radio volume at an audible level at all times
 - Be aware of all locations communicated over the radio
 - Position themselves to assist if escalation occurs
 - Remain alert until an official "all clear" is communicated
- Escalation Procedures
 - A combative, non-communicative, or non-compliant individual constitutes immediate grounds for escalation.
 - When escalation occurs:
 - The Shift Lead should immediately respond to the scene
 - Clear escalation communication should be given over the radio
 - Nearby Safety Team members should move into support positions
 - Camp counselors in the affected area should immediately secure and account for all students as the highest priority
 - Student safety remains the primary responsibility during any escalation scenario.
- Resolution
 - Once the situation has been resolved, the Shift Lead will communicate either:
 - "All clear," or
 - Further instructions if additional response is required
 - All team members should remain attentive until resolution has been officially communicated.
